Pipe of Peace

The time honored custom of smoking the pipe of peace was observed with all its impressive ceremonies last Thursday evening, June 7. The Seniors and their invited guests assembled at Kauke Hall and welcomed the Juniors. After an hour of social intercourse and some refreshments such as the brave braves and squawky squaws of bygone days certainly never enjoyed, the Seniors made a general distribution of corn-cob pipes and then the march to the athletic field was taken up. There a promenade in the moonlight was indulged in for about an hour before the speeches began. As the flaring blaze of the camp-fire lighted up the plain, the nearby trees and the distant hills, O. Eugene Pore began to spout. In all the tribe of '06 no more suitable brave than he could have been chosen to make peace, for a more gentle, mild-mannered warrior never scalped pale faces. And yet his speech was not so mild; with words of burning eloquence, he offered, instead of the implacable hatred existing between the hostile tribes of '06 and '07, an everlasting and magnanimous peace.

No wonder then that the representative of the fierce and vindictive Juniors, Edward Douglass, usually so dark, mysterious, and inscrutable, now with frank good will, and in well chosen words, accepted the proffered peace.

The valiant warrior, John Bull Scheidemantel, then took the ancient pipe of peace, gayly bedecked with the gorgeous colors of tribes that are dead and gone, and, poising it gracefully on his little finger, delivered a speech the poetic imagery of which brought tears to the eyes of the hundreds of beautiful Minnehahas and Pochohontases gathered around.

Then he passed the sacred emblem on to Edgar P. Carson, Chief Wind-Jammer of the Tribe of '07, who took it with many thanks and great gratitude. It is true that both of the '07 orators were a trifle boastful for such an occasion manifesting a little of the verdancy of their Freshman days and the arrogance of their Sophomore year, but for this the noble Tribe of '06 forgave them, seeing that it was a time for peace and knowing that such things would soon disappear.

Then the great, long, lank chief of the Seniors lighted the pipe—or attempted to, —and the great men of the two reconciled tribes smoked in silence.

New Editor and Business Manager

Frank H. Cowles Elected Editor-in-Chief and George S. Myers, Business Manager

The VOICE Board of Control met Monday afternoon, June 4, in the office of the President, Dr. W. Z. Bennett. Every member of the Board was present. Frank H. Cowles, '07, was unanimously elected editor-in-chief of the VOICE for the college year 1906—1907, and George S. Myers, '09, was elected business manager.

Mr. Cowles is well fitted both by ability and by experience to fill the responsible and arduous position of editor-in-chief. He has exceptional literary ability, is a hard worker, and is conscientious and faithful in the discharge of any duties that devolve upon him. He has probably had more experience in newspaper work than any editor-in-chief for a number of years back. His interest and activity in this line of work began in his high school days. In his Senior year in high school he was editor-in-chief of the Tatler, a monthly published by the students of the Des Moines, Ia., high school. After graduation, he was employed for a year on the staff of the Register and Leader, the leading daily of Iowa's capital, and since coming to Wooster, he has spent three of his vacations working on the same paper. This year he has done good work as an associate editor of the Index. During the larger part of this year, he has served the VOICE in the capacity of religious editor, and his work has always been of the highest character. He has not confined himself to the work of his own department, but has done much work for the paper in general. With his talents, his experience, his interest in this kind of work, and his ambition, Mr. Cowles will be fully able to maintain the high standard set by Editors Shaw, Triffitt and Welday, and perhaps raise it a little higher.

George S. Myers, although he is but a Freshman, has had as much business experience as the average Senior and is in every way fitted for the position of business manager. His popularity with students of all classes, his genial manner, and his sound judgement, insure his success and that of the paper.

Messrs. Cowles and Myers are contemplating some radical changes in the VOICE that will make it much more presentable. A good part of the spare time of both this summer will be spent in planning and preparing for the arduous undertaking of getting out a college paper in addition to the regular work of the school year.

If the character of the men at the head of the paper, and the way they are going at it is any indication as to next year's VOICE, the students, faculty, alumni, and friends of Wooster may be assured that it will be all right.

Senior Breakfast

The entire Senior class was very delightfully entertained last Saturday morning at an eight o'clock breakfast. After an hour of conversation on the vine-shaded veranda, the guests proceeded to the dining room where at a U shaped table, decorated with ferns and carnations, a very excellent and delicious menu was served. The Senior breakfast will be one of the most delightful recollections of the Commencement season.

The Last Sad Scene

This morning at 9:30 o'clock, the trustees, faculty, and those about to graduate will form in double column in the Philosophy room and march in solemn procession to the Chapel, where, after the exercises and ceremonies of the morning, the members of the class of 1906 will receive their diplomas, remove the tassels of their caps from the left to the right, and pass out into the world.

Class Day

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" Successfully Presented by the Class of 1906

The class of 1906 is certainly to be congratulated upon the success of its presentation of Shakespeare's most pleasing comedy, Monday night, June 11th. Ordinarily, Shakespeare in the hands of amateurs is more or less in the nature of a farce, but '06 has shown its histrionic ability to be far above the ordinary in that the cast accomplished the difficult end of pleasing their large audience as much and more than could have been done with some light modern comedy, far less difficult of presentation.

With a few minor exceptions at which one might split hairs, the cast was uniformly excellent. Alice Fitch was particularly happy in her interpretation of Hermia and Elizabeth Humphries made an ideal and womanly Helena. Ralph Plumer and Clinton Laughlin were well cast as the rivals for Hermia's hand and carried their roles well. W. M. Liggett made a dignified Dude of Athens, and Florence Moore made the most of the somewhat colorless role of Hippolyta. Leroy Allen played and looked well the part of the stern father.

One of the hits of the evening was Geo. A. Fitch's interpretation of the clownish bumpkin, Bottom, the weaver. Obstreperous, bumptious, self-assertive, but with no sense of his own ridiculousness, he bellows about and makes himself master of ceremonies in the rehearsal of the

The college year of 1905-1906 is now a matter of history, and as the months and years go by, its glories will become dimmer and dimmer, until but little is known of the year's record save by those curious souls who will turn over the musty leaves of the VOICE or the Index and sigh for the good old days of 1906.

Yet surely as that day will come, it is yet a great ways off, for the year that is just closing will be long remembered as one of the busiest and most successful in the history of the University. Victories in foot ball and base ball such as had not been known for over a decade and a half; the most successful basket ball season we have yet enjoyed and an undefeated track team are some of the achievements of which we are proud. In addition, we participated in four intercollegiate debates—unprecedented activity! True, we only won two, but one of them was on a unanimous decision, and now we have a body of trained and experienced debaters who next year ought to carry everything before them. In oratory, we won the State contest for the first time in five years. And—"what is more than all these boasts can be"—we found a little time to do some good hard slugging at the serious business of college life.

But the students were not the only strenuous ones, for work was started on the addition to the Library, plans were made for a new girls "dorm" and a movement was started among the alumni for a new "Gym." Truly, we have been making history. Now Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, Freshmen and Preps of next year, and faculty, alumni, and friends, altogether for a busier, better, greater, grander year in 1906-1907!

Credit to Whom Credit is Due To those members of the VOICE staff who have been faithful to the end in the duties committed to their care—and who of them have not?—we desire, before retiring into the obscurity of private life, where the chance words that fall from our lips will not be hung upon by the reading thousands, to publicly express our hearty appreciation and thanks for their assistance. We believe that no editor-in-chief has had the co-operation of such a faithful and efficient staff as the one about to retire. If in any respects the paper has been successful, the credit must be largely given to them. Quite a number not on the regular staff have been valued contributors to our columns, and these also we wish to thank. Also, let us give voice before we go to our appreciation of the kindness of our readers in reading the paper, of the words of praise and kindly criticism which they have spoken, and of their shekels, which have helped to pay the printer.

Preparatory Commencement

The annual Commencement exercises of the Preparatory Department were held last Thursday evening, June 7, in Memorial Chapel. As the processional was played by Miss Bertha Hunter, the class marched down the long aisle and took their places in the choir loft, while the faculty of the Department marched upon the platform. Thirty-two young men and ladies received the diplomas which attest the fact that they are not only eligible for the Freshman class of Wooster U., or any other college in the land, but that they have a good academic education, even if they go no further, which, however all of them doubtless will. The salutatory and valedictory were excellent productions and were very well delivered. The address to the class, delivered by Prof. George P. Bacon, was interesting and at the same time very helpful, very suggestive, and very inspiring.

Baccalaureate Sermon

Last Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, to the strains of the processional hymn, No. 354, the trustees, faculty, and the class of 1906 marched slowly up the aisle of the Chapel and took their places. After Scripture reading, prayer, and an anthem by the choir, President L. E. Holden preached the baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class. His text was the last clause of Joshua III:4, "Ye have not passed this way heretofore." Dr. Holden's sermon was very helpful and suggestive. At its conclusion, he delivered the following address to the class.

My Friends, Brothers and Sisters:—I have desired to bring before you, upon this last Sabbath of your college life, some thought that might quicken and inspire and help you, under God, to self-mastery and to a victorious life. Can there be anything more inspiring to young manhood and young womanhood than the study of God's providential relation to His children? It unfolds to us the great truth that the author of natural law, is still master of the universe and in command of the laws of his own providence which affect our every-day life. He who has loved us and given Himself for us is more interested in us than any or all of our most intimate friends. It is through His gracious providence that we have reached this hour.

This week you are to leave this beautiful hill-top, nevermore to return as students. Others will take your places, and I can never pray with you again as a class, nor talk to you out of this open book. This is my last opportunity. Bear with me, therefore, while I give you my last exhortation.

The world is God's university. The courses are all prescribed for His children. God knows best the course adapted to develop each of His children to his highest capacity. The experiences of life make up the lessons in His university. Throughout the course God recognizes our individual freedom. He treated us as intelligent persons, to be persuaded and convinced, students who have recognized thus far in their lives His providential care over them. In God's university the entrance requirement is the germ of spiritual insight. The germ may be as small as a mustard seed, but it must be in the student else there is no spiritual life to be developed by God's dealings with him. You cannot develop spiritual life where there is nothing to start with, no more than you can educate an imbecile.

God has given us ground for our faith in Him as the master teacher. Our whole course of life thus far is crowded with examples of His providence and guidance in His attempt to secure from us our acknowledgement, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Added to our own experience He has given us the story of the numberless lives of His saints who have walked by faith and have obtained the promises. He has also given us the life of His own son, our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, a Teacher who not only teaches us great and abiding truths, but reveals to us how He came to know these truths and encourages us to follow in His footsteps that we too may be equipped to withstand the darts of the evil one and to stand in the strength of a Christian manhood and womanhood for individual and rational righteousness. We are to know the truth by experience of it in our own lives.

God recognizes that we are free moral agents. It is our privilege to rebel against Him and to refuse to learn the lessons which he sets before us in the school of life. If this be our course, we must take the consequences of our own ignorance and self will. Our free agency makes us responsible for the result of our own action. Christ Himself did not escape the school of affliction. He learned obedience through suffering. He was made perfect by suffering. To run away from the work and the training of life is cowardly. Its path leads to peace and joy here and eternal happiness in the life beyond. We were born for a great work in the Master's kingdom, let us then submit to the training for the work of the divine Teacher, who, though invisible, is omnipresent. Let us then resolve to be docile in God's university, willing to stay as long as he sees fit, becoming more and more adept in knowing His will and, by precept and example, leading our fellows to more perfect obedience to His will and a sincere devotion to His service. Some day we shall know the purpose of our every-day experience. Until then let us keep our eye on the Christ, willing to follow Him to death if need be.

In the name of our dear College, and by the memory of those who with prayer and toil dedicated its unseen future; in the name of those staunch and reverent men and women who have gone out from this institution, every one to his work; in the name of those who have taught you here with genuine solicitude for your noblest training, "seeking not yours, but you;" nay, by your responsibility to yourselves and to your Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ, I charge you to be men and women of vision. While the worldling fixes his thought and affection on this unsubstantial pageant of the senses, look you into the world of ultimate reality, with the vision of a seer, and put the facts of the soul before the fancies of the senses. Educate your spiritual vision by keeping your eyes fixed on the ark of the covenant. Exercise your faith until it becomes the basis of your life and the warrant of all rational hope.

Faith is logical. It reasons from the constancy of God. It takes faith to go out, "not knowing wither." Thanks be unto God, we know with whom. May the light of the knowledge of the glory of God shine in your hearts, in the face of Jesus Christ. He is your soul's Lord, your Master, your Example, your Redeemer. Seize his loving hand. He will stand by you in the furnace of temptation, in the solitude of responsibility, in the prison-house of affliction. You shall come more and more intimately to know Him, and to more and more realize His daily presence in your lives and the value of His tender promises to you as the years pass by.

May God free you from every sordid ambition, from appetite, from the pride and vanity of this life, and number each of you with those who refuse to sham goodness, but live the gospel you profess. God fulfils for you every desire of goodness and every work of faith with power.

Finally, let me call your attention to the fact that God was ever present with His people during their training. When He ordered Joshua to make the start, He was present that he should not be overwhelmed. God will always be with us in the line of duty.

"tedious brief scene full of tragical mirth." And tragical mirth it was, both here and in the last act where the play is presented before Theseus. "Hap" Cramer made the hit of his life as the beautiful(?) Thisbe, and the other "Hempen Homespuns" held the audience to forget dull care.

The Oberon and Titania of C. H. Rice and Mary McClelland were well played and the fairy chorus showed that they had been well drilled at the painstaking hands of Prof. Erb. A. I. Good, as Puck was, to quote some critics in the audience, "just too cute for anything." Not least of the cast was Dr. Bennett's dog, who acted as if he had been on the stage all his life and only grew nervous once.

Dr. Bennett, Prof. Erb, the piano quartet, and the committee in charge deserve great credit for the success of the affair, for they all worked hard and the congratulations showered on them were well deserved ones. All in all it was an unusually creditable performance, and sets a high mark for 1907's Class Day. F. H. C.

Epitomy of Play

SCENE 1. Palace of Theseus. At the opening of the play, Theseus, Duke of Athens, having made war upon the Amazons and captured their queen, Hippolyta, in battle, is about to wed her. Egeus, an Athenian lord, makes complaint against his daughter Hermia, who has refused to marry Demetrius, his choice for her, and has betrothed herself to Lysander. Lysander and Hermia resolve to flee from Athens, where without the pale of the Athenian law they may wed in safety. Helena, a school-fellow of Hermia, in love with Demetrius, entering, learns of their intent and resolves to betray it to Demetrius.

SCENE 2. Six hard-headed workmen, who had heard of the prospective marriage of their duke, resolve to prepare a play to celebrate his nuptials.

ACT II

SCENE 1. A wood near Athens. Midnight. Among the fairies. Puck, the attendant on the King of Fairies meets the leading attendant on the queen. Enter Titania, Queen of the Fairies, with train. March. Enter Oberon, King of Fairies. Quarrel between the jealous king and queen. Exit train. Plot of Oberon. Enter Demetrius, Helena following. Scornful treatment of Helena by Demetrius. Plot of fairies to reverse the fancy.

"Fare thee well, nymph: ere he do leave this grove
Thou shalt fly him, and he shall seek thy love."

SCENE 2. The Wood. Among the fairies. Fairy Songs. Titania sleeps. Oberon uses the flower,

"The juice of which on sleeping eyelid laid
Will make or man or woman madly dote."

Enter Lysander and Hermia flying from Athens. Under the fairy spell they fall asleep in the wood. Mistake of Puck. Helena and Demetrius entering awake Lysander who under the influence of the flower madly dotes on Helena and flies after her, leaving Hermia alone. Hermia awakes and finds Lysander gone. Intermezzo. Hermia wildly seeking for Lysander.

ACT III.

SCENE 1. The Wood. Rehearsal of the

"Hempen Homespuns" of their play. Puck puts an ass's head on Bottom. Titania waking madly dotes on him.

SCENE 2. The Wood. Hermia, meeting Demetrius, accuses him of murdering Lysander. Finally, finding Lysander with Helena, she learns of his changed affections. A quarrel ensues between Helena and Hermia and between Lysander and Demetrius. Finally, under the influence of the fairy spell, all fall asleep in the forest. Puck corrects his mistake.

The Nocturne

ACT IV.

SCENE 1. The Wood. The doting of Titania. Her release by Oberon. Morning dawns. Enter Theseus, Hippolyta and Egeus. Waking of the lovers.

"Egeus, I will overbear your will."

"Away with us to Athens, three and three."

ACT V.

SCENE 1. Palace of Theseus. Nuptial revelries after the marriage of the three pairs of lovers. Wedding March. The Play. "A tedious brief scene of Pyramus and his love Thisbe; very tragical mirth." After the play all retire to the strains of the wedding march. Enter fairies. Fairy chorus.

"So, good-night unto you all."

The Junior Oratorical Contest

The annual contest for the prize of twenty-five dollars established by the class of 1878 was held last Saturday evening in Taylor Auditorium. There were six contestants. The presiding officer was Prof. W. J. Seelye, who introduced as the first orator of the evening Philip S. Landes. Mr. Landes spoke with his usual fire and force. His work showed clearly the good effects of his excellent training in intercollegiate debating this year. His delivery was confident and polished. His subject was "Romanism in the United States," a subject in which he appeared deeply interested and very much in earnest.

"The Spirit of the Crowd" was the subject of Miss Mary E. Grove, who delivered a very excellent and well written oration in a very pleasing manner. Her treatment of the theme gave evidence of deep thought and a philosophical trend of mind.

John Orr's oration on "Martin Luther, Reformer" was an eloquent portrayal of the life and deeds of the great leader of the Reformation, with a eulogy of the principles and characteristics, which made his opposition to the abuses and iniquities of the Roman Church so successful. Mr. Orr excelled in thought and composition.

"The Secret of Happiness," Miss Lucile Hanna said, in well chosen words and with a wealth of apt illustration, was self-sacrifice. Her oration made a very favorable impression.

Elbert Heusch had given his oration the enigmatic title, "An Incident or an Indication—Which?" However, there was nothing uncertain about the oration. It dealt with the demand of the Chicago saloon keepers for the non-enforcement of law and made a straight-out demand for the strict enforcement of law. Mr. Heusch's production was unified and coherent, and his delivery was strong, graceful, and dignified.

W. D. Buchanan delivered the closing oration of the contest, taking for his subject "The Present Crisis." Mr. Buchanan's oration dealt in a masterful way with present social, economic, and industrial conditions. The speaker, in conclusion, made an eloquent plea for industrial democracy. His thought and composition was unexcelled by any oration of the evening, but he was slightly hampered by his delivery.

The musical numbers added much to the enjoyment of the program. Vocal solos by Miss Margaret Pomeroy and J. Fuller Wallace were well rendered and were received with great appreciation by the audience.

The judges were Rev. A. H. Brand, '96, of Anburn, Ill., Mr. J. M. Criley, '92, Rev. A. L. Palmer, Mr. C. A. Weiser and Judge R. L. Adair, '91. Their decision gave the prize to Mr. Heusch and second place to Mr. Landes.

The 1907 "Index"

The 1907 Index was put on sale Wednesday, June 6, and sold very rapidly. The book is one of the best ever gotten out. Printed on fine, deckle-edge paper in the Old English style, with the halftones pasted in instead of printed on the pages, and with uncut leaves, the volume presents a most unique and to most tastes at least, a most pleasing appearance. Typographically, the volume is a beauty, and the "cuts" are also nicely printed. The credit for this is due the Collier Printing Co., who can certainly be proud of their work. The only thing to regret is that the book was not bound in cloth.

This year's volume was gotten out by C. B. Craig, Editor-in-Chief; Frank H. Cowles, Art Editor; A. W. Moore, Business Manager; John D. Overholt, Associate Manager; and Misses Catherine Vance and Mary F. Elder, Associate Editors, and the Board is to be congratulated on their production.

Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the book is the large number of excellent drawings, most of which were executed by R. W. Irwin, '08. Quite a number of good humorous poems form a fitting conclusion and climax to the volume.

The Quartette's Doylestown Concert

The Quartette, composed of Messrs. Rice, Pratt, Richardson and Fitch, and assisted by Miss Foltz and Miss Fitch, gave one of their concerts at Doylestown a week from last Friday, June 1st. The program was enthusiastically received, and they were even forced to respond with an encore to the last number. Mrs. Miller, a prominent lady in Doylestown circles, held a most delightful reception for the Quartette after the concert was over; dainty refreshments were served and many new and delightful acquaintances were made. The Quartette unanimously voted it the most pleasant trip of the season.

Willard—Castalian Public

The Willard and Castalian Literary Societies gave a joint public program Tuesday morning before a large and appreciative audience. The various literary numbers were well received and were indicative of the high standards maintained in both societies.

The musical numbers were supplied by Miss Mary Glenn, Pianist, and Miss Christine Miller, Contralto. Miss Miller's pleasing manner and beautiful voice won much applause from the audience.

A unique feature of the program was the closing number, "A Dream," in which a meeting of the Faculty, a dinner at Hoover Cottage and Fire Drill at the Cottage were reproduced. The program was carried out as follows:

Kenyon Defeated Again

Several weeks since, Wooster whipped the Kenyon crowd of balltossers by the score of three to nothing down at Gambier; Tuesday she turned the trick once more, outclassing her opponents to the tune of nine to five in a loosely played and, for the great part, uninteresting exhibition of the national pastime. Yet there were spots where both sides showed form and speed. A closer contest than that held Tuesday was expected by the collegians, who judged by the score at Gambier; however, the game demonstrated conclusively that Kenyon is not to be classed with Wooster. The Kenyon team was all there to the last an in the ninth ran in two runs, making the final score Wooster 9, Kenyon 5. The Varsity could not be at all accurately estimated by the work done Tuesday for the simple reason that they did not have to play hard ball in order to win. This fact is to be deplored because a Commencement assemblage, made up as it is of old grads and others interested in the U., ought to be presented with a snappy article of ball; however, we can remember the bright places and hope for a fast game next June.

Lloyd fanned the first Kenyon batter, hit the next, who was immediately advanced to second by a sacrifice bunt, but caught sleeping at second by a fast throw of Putnam. The first two batters fled, Blaser walked, and the next man flew out.

A base on balls and a hit, coupled with a sacrifice and an error at the plate, netted Kenyon two runs in the second. The visiting shortstop spoiled a strong bid for a hit by Putnam, Compton drew a pass, stole second and, when Steele was hit, they worked the double steal, but were left stranded. Wooster evened matters up in the third, when, with two down, Blaser singled sharply over third side, second, scored on Brown's single to center, who also tallied on an overthrow at home. Coupland, in the fourth made a brilliant stop and throw to first of a smash into deep short field and also by a clever piece of work caught a man napping at third. In our share of the fourth whirl we rather put it over them; on Compton's walk, Moore's double and Kenyon's errors, were an 4 runs across the gum. Put fielded a well placed bunt, Blaser ate up a skyscraper and Bill fanned the next man.

Kenyon had enough and sent another twirler in the box. Upon him also did we open our scoring machine and Lloyd made one run, helped along by captain Blaser and the Kenyon slab artist. There was plenty doing in the sixth section, but no runs resulted on eighth side, eighth number seven. Kenyon made their third tally in the eight. Blaser made a fine stop of a high bounder, but was too late to nail his man, who finally scored on our overthrow at the plate. However, Coupland stopped the run getting by a quick throw to the plate, nailing the runner by inches only. Kenyon was still up and coming in the last inning; a low throw by Moore to first, a base on balls, a clean hit between short and second and an overthrow at the plate equaled two runs by Kenyon. Meanwhile Lloyd fanned three batters and the show was over.

Wooster has a record that cannot be paralleled by any ball team in Ohio and deserves the rather visionary state championship, if any team does. Beaten by Case, on more than even terms with Wesleyan, and playing a heavier schedule than either, Wooster has truly reason to be proud of Captain Blaser and his State Champions.

Oratorio Concert

The annual concert of the Oratorio chorus, given Tuesday evening in Memorial Chapel was a great success. The chorus, under the efficient direction of Prof. J. Lawrence Erb, gave a beautiful rendition of Cowen's "Rose Maiden." The following soloists added much to the pleasure of the concert by their effective work: Miss Caroline Z. Hudson, Soprano; Miss Christina Miller, Contralto; Mr. Edwin H. Douglass, Tenor; and Francis L. Sadilier, Bass.

Theta Reunion

Probably no event of commencement week was more thoroughly enjoyed by those privileged to be present than the luncheon given by the Theta Alumni association to the visiting members and active chapter of the fraternity, Tuesday noon. The affair was informal, being in the nature of a lawn party at the home of Miss Margaret Platter. About fifty guests were present. Among those from out of town were Mrs. Harriet Funck Miller, Mrs. Bertha M'Manigal Boyd, Mrs. Albertine Parmalee Feagel, Mrs. Jean M'Williams Fisher, Mrs. Mildred Packer Elliott, Mrs. Bertha Brown Myers, Miss May Corbett, Miss Grace Eggleston, Miss Lucile Jones, Miss Katherine Snyder, Miss Hazel Emery, Miss Laura Fulton, Mrs. Lula Frick Clark, Miss Margaret M'Clelland, Miss Sara Anderson, Miss Loof-borrow and others.

Address to the Y. M. C. A.

Rev. S. S. Palmer, D. D., '87, pastor of the of the First Presbyterian church of Columbus, Ohio, delivered the annual address before the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday evening in Memorial Chapel. The house was filled with a very attentive audience. Dr. Palmer's theme was "Sin", and his address was very practical and helpful. It was delivered in such a straight forward and forceful manner as to command attention and bring conviction.

Farewell!

Yesterday morning the class of 1906 assembled before Severance Hall, where Dr. W. Z. Bennett, the honorary member of the class, labors, to plant the ivy. In an eloquent oration Ralph W. Correll committed the ivy to the tender care of the class of '08. Miss May Irwin, '08, in very fitting words accepted this trust. Then Miss Margaretta Dickey, read one of the best ivy poems ever written. Dr. Bennet was here called on and in touching words bade farewell to the class. The class and spectators then formed in line and made the rounds of the buildings, Miss Schriber saying farewell to Kauke Hall; C. H. Rice to Hoover Cottage; Miss Humphries, to the Library; L. E. Bonar, to Scovel Hall; E. M. Mowry to the Chapel; and Miss Douglas to Severance Hall.

The class then met in Dr. Bennett's lecture room. It was decided that, with the $100 left from the proceeds of the class play, a present should be purchased for Dr. Bennett as a slight token for his many kindnesses to the class and that, with the rest, a painting should be placed either in Kauke Hall or the Library. The class voted to picnic at Chippewa Lake this afternoon after the Corporation Lunch.

Phi Gamma Delta

The second annual reunion dinner of Rho Deuteron Chapter, of Phi Gamma Delta was given at the fraternity house on Beall Ave. Tuesday evening. Twenty-five alumni and active members were in attendance and the occasion was a most enthusiastic one. Those present were; Rev. E. N. McMillen, '87, Stuart Eagleson, '91; William T. Amos, '91. Carey E. McAfee, '95; James R. Dunn, '97; Karl F. Overholt, '97; William R. Curry, '97; George A. Gaston, '99; Dr. Wm. F. Saybolt, '99; Dr. Frank P. Atkinson, '99, Earl L. Triffit, '04; Fred P. Paisley, '04, and nearly all the undergraduate members.

The President's Reception

On last Friday evening President and Mrs. L. E. Holden very pleasantly entertained the members of the Senior Class and the faculty. The evening was very warm, but the relief of being through with the last examination made every one happy, and a most delightful time was enjoyed by all.

The following items from the Toledo Blade may be of interest to some of our readers:

Miss Georgia Ormond, who has been spending some months in art study in New York City, has been represented by some of her work in the recent exhibition of the Woman's Art Club of New York, of which she is now a member.

Miss Georgia Ormond, who has been studying this winter at the Art Students' League of New York, has won the scholarship of the men's and women's sculpture classes in the recent competition.

Farewell Communion Service

The Farewell Communion Service was held Sunday morning in Memorial Chapel. The class of 1906 attended in a body. The following selections were rendered by Prof. J. Lawrence Erb and the Chapel choir:
Organ Prelude—"Largo" (Xerxes) - - - Handel
Anthem—"Savior, Source of Ev'ry Blessing" - - - Mozart
Offertory—"Traumerei" Schuman
The Sevenfold Amen - - - Stainer
Postlude—"Marche Religieuse" - - - Guilmant

According to the custom of having a member of the class which graduated ten years before preach at this service, Rev. A. H. Brand '96, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Auburn, Ill., preached the sermon. He took for his text I Samuel 9:2, "And he had a son, whose name was Saul a choice young man, and a goodly: and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he was higher than any of the people." The sermon was very appropriate, both for a communion service, and to be addressed to a class about to graduate. His theme was the worthlessness and final ruin of a self-centered life. He drew from the life of Saul the lesson that in spite of special gifts from God, personal beauty, personal magnetism or exceptional advantages, if these things are used for the glory of self, instead of the glory of God, the life will end in failure.

"Co-ed" Literary After All

The recent agitation in favor of "co-ed" literary societies has already born fruit. On Friday evening, June 1, Athenaeon voted to unite with Castalian into one society to be known as the Athenaeon-Castalian Literary Society. On Monday, June 4, a special meeting of Castalian was called and the matter was presented. It was adopted, and a committee was appointed to co-operate with a similar committee from Athenaeon. The joint committee met Tuesday, and the union was formally consummated. The first two programs for next year have already been prepared and they contain the names of an equal number of men and ladies.

The union is only a tentative one, the plan being that the "co-ed" idea should be given a trial of one year, and then, if deemed successful, that it be made permanent, but if not, that the two societies return to their former status. Provision is also made in the plan of union for the splitting up into two "co-ed" sections, next year in case the number in the one large society prove too much for good work.

The plan is certainly worth a trial, and the experiment which these two brave pioneer societies are making will be watched with intense interest, especially by the other societies.

"High in Quality as the Alps"

More than a delicious confection.

It's nourishing and sustaining food.

Students on long tramps, during Athletic sports, tennis, rowing, etc., finds that Peter's Chocolate prevents exhaustion. Wooster students find a favorite pass time in Walking to the Experiment Station. Along the narrow and rocky pathways and at the resting places provided for weary climbers, one may see the discarded wrappers of Peter's Chocolate, while the student, refreshed, climbs higher and higher to the summit.

"Yes, sir," said the boys.

"Now," continued the teacher, "what I want to know is this: How is it that, while I am standing upright in the ordinary position, the blood doesn't run into my feet?"

And a little fellow shouted, "Why, sir, 'cause yer feet ain't empty."
